REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The prior art, Daughtery, III, US 5,884,286, discloses means for exchanging commodities; means for hedging with options and futures contracts (See, for example, columns 1-2) including using call/put options, bought at a premium, to guarantee a maximum/minimum price for a buyer.

Daughtery lacks the teaching of executing a software application on a computer to aggregate contracts into a smaller number of contracts; calculating a price for a quantity of the commodity based on the average of selected prices (observed prices and maximum/minimum prices) and a premium/discount above/below the average.

The prior art, JP 11353361 A, teaches a consumer selling system for Internet utilizing a weighted mean price higher than a standard price.

JP 11353361 A lacks the teaching of executing a software application on a computer to aggregate contracts into a smaller number of contracts; calculating a price for a quantity of the commodity based on the average of selected prices (observed prices and maximum/minimum prices) and a premium/discount above/below the average.

Art Unit: 3627

The Chicago Mercantile Exchange website (www.cme.com) and The Chicago Board of Trade website (www.cbot.com) teach agricultural contracts and the use of futures and options.

The websites lack the teaching of executing a software application on a computer to aggregate contracts into a smaller number of contracts; calculating a price for a quantity of the commodity based on the average of selected prices (observed prices and maximum/minimum prices) and a premium/discount above/below the average.

The limitations lacking in the prior art, in combination with the other features clearly claimed in the application, are novel and unobvious.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
